Welcome to the Great Wizard's Exclusives Page. The artwork created by Fighting Fantasy artists has always been spectacular, and so are Wizard Books' new range of covers. These have no doubt inspired many of you to create your own images depicting your favourite monsters, characters and scenes from the series. Here we present our exclusive look at unseen artwork and sketches, as well as short interviews we've had with the cover artists themselves.

The following information was originally published on the unofficial AdvancedFightingFantasy.com detailing at the time exclusive unseen discussions and material from the original Puffin Fighting Fantasy series. At the time I was fortunate to perform many interviews with many of the original Fighting Fantasy contributors, authors and artists and they were kind enough to reveal much about their work for the genre. In a number of these interviews via email, mail and telephone I presented and revealed information regarding unseen Gamebooks, proposals and artwork that has never seen the light of day. These included details on unpublished titles that Puffin was considering for publication at the time namely; 60 Saga of the Stormchaser by Jonathan Green, 61 The Thief of Arantis by Dave Morris, 62 The Wailing World by Paul Mason, 63 Pirates of the Black Skull by Jonathan Green, 64 Deathlord by Andrew Chapman & Martin Allen, Deathtrap Dungeon 3 by Dave Morris, 65 Night of the Creature by Marc Gascoinge and 66 The Keeper of the Seven Keys by Dave Morris & Jamie Thomson. Other titles such as the [Redacted] plot known as [Redacted] by [Redacted], Labyrinth of Death by Dave Morris & Jamie Thomson, a Sequel to Curse of the Mummy by Jonathan Green and [Redacted] also by]Redacted]. As originally presented on
